Board Reaches Accord With McClure Engineers

by CHARLES JOHNSTON

The Antioch Village Board reached agreement on an engineering contract with McClure Engineering at its regular board meeting on Monday, Aug. 18. Under the new contract, hourly rates have been simplified, making it easier for the board to forecast engineering costs for any given project. After approving the contract, the board appointed McClure as the village engineer for the coming year.

The board also authorized the signing of a plat for Westgate II subdivision. This is the second phase of the Westgate subdivision which is located east of Tiffany St.

The building commissioner was instructed to work with the planning commission to review the design specifications on the current subdivision ordinance. The board is concerned that some of the specifications are outdated and will consider revisions to bring the ordinance up to date with current building standards.

The village has had a bit of a problem keeping part-time police dispatchers: two part-timers hired in the last month have already quit. So the board authorized the police chief to advertise for and hire one fulltime dispatcher to replace the two spots that were, till now, part-time.

All current-liquor license holders in the village will be invited to attend a public meeting at the village hall at 8:30 p.m. on. Monday, Sept. 15. Antioch has never had a beer and wine only license, but the village has had some interest expressed in having such licenses available. Officials will discuss this proposal with current license-holders and members of the general public at this Village Clerk Marilyn Sterbenz said that if such a license is approved, it would be issued to restaurants for service bars.

Due to the Labor Day holiday, the meeting regularly scheduled for Monday, Sept. 1, will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 2 at 7:30 p.m. A public hearing on the proposed tax levy will be held at 7 p.m. on the same night.

Experiment In Dual Superintendency Over

CHARLES JOHNSTON

The Grass Lake School Board has named nthony Przeklasa, of Downers Grove, to be uperintendent of Grass Lake School Dist. 6, thus ending a six-month experiment in dual superintendency with Lotus School.

Until two weeks ago, Art Smejkal had aced as superintendent of both Lotus and Grass Lake Schools. That ended when Lotus offered Smejkal a contract after an exensive search for a superintendent, but Grass Lake took no action.

Nobody seems to have much to say about why the experiment was ended, but both boards are happy with the men they have

Some who were involved in the negotiations suggested that Lotus was happy with the program, but that the Grass Lake School Board was concerned about maintaining its autonomy. Since Lotus hired Smejkal, who had been acting as the dual superintendent, that explanation seems plausible. Grass Lake School Board President Ardeen Harris had no comment when asked why the experiment was drop-

In any case, both schools seem to be very happy with the superintendents they have chosen and are looking ahead to the coming

For Smejkal, the appointment at Lotus represents a return to his roots: his first job as a superintendent was at Lotus School 20 years ago. He served for many years in the interim as the superintendent of Avon School Dist. in Round Lake Beach.

Przeklasa is 39 years old and has been in education for 17 years. He has taught at both the elementary and secondary levels and has served administratively as a principal, assistant superintendant, and superintendent.

He is a Ph.D. candidate at Northwestern University and was a clinical supervisor of student teachers while at Northwestern.

Last year, Przeklasa was the superintendent of Miller Elementary School Dist. in Marseilles, Ill.

Both Lotus and Grass Lake worked in conjunction with the Illinois Assn. of School Boards to conduct their search for a superintendent.

So, while the experiment with a dual superintendency is over, education will continue in both districts. Certainly, neither school is the worse for having tried.

No Bum Steer Here

ne State Bank of Antioch purchased a 1,200-lb. steer at the Lake County Fair aucon and donated it to the Antioch Boys' Little League, Girls' Softball League, and abe Ruth Leagues. Bank president, Randy Miles (center) successfully bid on the eer, which was raised by 4-H member, Kim Richards. Richards is the daughter of ave (far right) and Susan Richards of Zion. Also attending the purchase were, om left, Charlie, Jane, and Audra Miles. The bank donates a steer each year to he combined leagues and pays the cost of processing the beef for prize winners.

New Ordinances Will Speed Service And Save Lives

The Antioch Rescue Squad and Fire Dept. have successfully gotten two ordinances passed by the First Fire Protection Dist. of Antioch Twp. and the Village of Antioch that, officials say, will improve service and save

The first ordinance will require each occupied property in the village and fire district to display the address number in a location on the property so as to be clearly visible under all conditions from the street fronting the property. Passed in an effect to speed response by all entergency agencies, the ordinance further requires that numbers shall be three inches high and be of contrasting color to the background. No script numbers shall be used.

Smoke detectors, which have been proven to be a life-saving tool, are now required in all residential properties. The requirements vary for single and multi-family dwellings. Full information on the requirements can be gotten from the Fire Prevention Bureau.

People who have questions on either ordinance may call the fire department on Tuesdays or Thursdays between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. at (312) 395-5511.

On Wednesday, Aug. 13, representatives of Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA), the Illinois Attorney General's office, and the McHenry County State's Attorney's office appeared in the courtroom of 19th Judicial Circuit Court Judge Michael Sullivan seeking a temporary restraining order against Hillview Farms in Richmond.

Owned by Arnold May, Hillview had been accused of dumping raw sludge into a pond on the farm in violation of Illinois law.

The complainants asked that Hillview be restrained from accepting any additional waste sludge until all sludge had been removed from the field and from placing any additional sludge in the pond. The complainants further asked that:

-the court find that Hillview had violated section 12(a) of the Act in question.

-- the court enjoin Hillview from any further violations of the Act.

-Hillview submit to the court and plaintiff within 10 days, a plan for the installation of groundwater monitoring wells in the vicinity of the sludge pond and farm field.

-Hillview be ordered to identify and analyze the waste sludge in the sludge pond and farm field and submit the analysis within 10 days to the court.

-Hillview post a performance bond to ensure that all remedial actions required by the court will be completed to the satisfaction of the court.

-the court assess a civil penalty of $10,000 for each violation and an additional penalty of $1,000 for each day that violations con-

May and his attorneys responded to the charges by agreeing that they had pumped sludge into the pond in question, but May said that it had been part of an experiment to improve and maximize daily injection volume. They said that they had been removing the sludge from the pond before there was any court action.

May said that the pond area was used as an intermediate reservoir from which to pump to the umbilical unit while injecting in the "Shotliffe" fields, which are distant from the main Hillview tanks. He added that he never had any intention of using the pond as an intermediate temporary (or holding) reservoir.

The judge's ruling indicated that complainants had made their point by entering most of the orders requested, but left it up to the pollution control board to make the final decision as to whether Hillview will continue operations. Judge Sullivan did not enjoin Hillview from accepting or injecting any more sludge, ruling that there was sufficient storage capacity to handle the job.

The protracted battle which has gone on between Hillview and surrounding residents since last fall is expected to finally come to an end after the hearing on Hillview's appeals by the pollution control board later this month. The board will meet at Richmond High School on Aug. 28 and 29 to hear testimony on the appeal. Testimony will be taken until 10 p.m. on Aug. 28 in order to give people who work during the day an opportunity to speak on the issues.

Set Gamefield Course

Antioch Community High School has announced the official opening of its new Gamefield Fitness Course, located at the high school athletic fields on August 22.

Built in cooperation with Saint Therese Medical Center in Waukegan, the regional sponsor for the National Fitness Campaign, the course features exercise stations to help improve individual muscle tone, heart and respiratory system.

The Gamefield concept, often referred to as an outdoor fitness club, was designed by the Stanford University Heart Disease Prevention Center and the Arizona Heart In-

Antioch's dedication to fitness and good health promped the participation in the Gamefield program. Carla Thompson. Physical Education teacher said. "We believe this is an investment in the wellbeing of our students. The irreplaceable quality of good health. However, in order to preserve that, and improve upon one's capacity we must have the proper motivation and utilize this equipment on a regular basis." The high school fitness course is one of nine opening this year in Lake County and among 5,000 across the country. State's Attorney May Refile Baker Charges

The Lake County State's Attorney's office may reinstate charges against James R. Baker of rural Antioch. Baker, who owns a livery stable near Antioch, had been charged with three misdemeanors, two counts of failure to fulfill owner's duties and one count of failure to dispose of dead horses.

The charges had been dropped after the Lake County State's Attorney's office was told that Baker would be serving a year in a Wisconsin prison. That was on July 9, but since that time, Baker's sentence was reduced to time served and he has been the misdemeanor division, said the office is reviewing the charges with the attitude that they will refile them.

The charges are all Class C misdemeanors carrying penalties of up to 30 days in jail and fines of up to $500 per offense. Baker and his wife, Cindy, were charged in February after allegations that they had mistreated horses. Three dead horses and two badly malnourished horses were discovered on their property by the Illinois Hoofed Animal Society.

Cindy Baker was convicted and sentenced to one year of supervision and one day in jail, with credit for time served.

Sheet To Aid Voters

"The Lake County Clerks. office is always looking for ways to make voting more accessible and easy for voters with special needs," reports Lake County Clerk Linda Hess, "and we're trying something new this election."

"We've acquired a new aid for the voter who finds it difficult to read the print on the ballot pages," Hess stated. "This new device--a magnifying sheet--will greatly help the visually impaired. The magnifying sheet is a specially processed sheet of plastic that does a fine job of magnifying the ballot page when held about four inches above the page."

"The magnifying sheets will be available to voters who vote at the clerks office and at all nursing homes throughout Lake County. It will be used for the first time in the November election of an experimental basis," Hess continued. "Therefore, the magnifying sheets are available in a limited supply and special arrangements can be made to have the magnifying sheet available at the polling place of someone with this special need."

"If you would like the clerks office to supply the magnifying sheet to your polling place, please call us at (312)360-5912 to notify us of your special need," she

"If all goes well with this new idea we hope to someday make the magnifying sheets available as a regular part of the voting supplies issued to each polling place," Hess concluded.

Odors At Hillview Not Excessive: Thomson

Editor's Note: Mr. Thomson refers to an experiment in July in which "pure clean water" was injected as an experiment. On Aug. 13, Arnold may admitted in court that he had tested a piece of equipment by pumping sludge, not water, into a depressed area of open field at Hillview Farms. See the related story in this newspaper for further in-

The second of th

This is the second of a series of articles giving another perspective on sludge and related problems in connection with the Hillview Farms. They are written by Jim Thomson, retired editor of Prairie Farmer. This article will deal with the odor problem on and off the farm.

by JIM THOMSON

Farming has its drawbacks. How many of us could face the uncertainty that goes with farming and still smile?

There's always the threat of it being too wet or too dry, of early fall frosts or late and high costs, of weeds and insects and so on.

Besides these, the farmer often incurs the wrath of urban neighbors who can't understand why he can't raise livestock without odors. Farmers who feed livestockcattle, hogs, sheep, poultryare going to have odors whether we like it or not.

Sometimes farm odors bother rural people but not often. Some farmers refer t the odors as "the smell of money." You can't have a barbecue or a good steak without livestock.

Generally, the prevailing winds across Illinois blow farm odors from southwest and west to northeast and east. So, does it make sense to build a home on the lee side of livestock?

If instead, you should build on the windward side, you will rarely experience odors. If you do, they will hardly be noticeable. Many of us have good imaginations.

Take, for example, the time several years ago-and Hillview Farms owner Arnie May wondered if a lot of the complaints about odors came out of the imaginations of his neighbors. Those who witnessed the experiment this year will tell you that it

Instead of the manure/sludge mix normally loaded into his application equipment, May loaded the tank with pure clean water. He took the tank of clean water to the fields nearest the complainers and began to inject the water into the soil.

The results were electrifying. Within minutes, the phones were ringing at the McHenry County Health Dept. and EPA office. The agencies were told that May was violating the rules by injecting sludge and the "stench" was unbearable.

In July of this year, he tried it again. With witnesses this time, the same thing happened. Imagination can play tricks on most of us.

What about the current situation? What about the mix of sludge and cattle manure which May collects in below-ground pits? Are powerful and pungent odors coming from these pits?

Let's hear from the men of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency who checked for odors throughout the past year from January to December. During that time 13 inspections were made on the May farm, about one every show? Of the 13 inspections for odors emanating from Hillview Farms, three were listed by the inspectors as "moderate," seven were listed as "slight," and two were listed as "not noted."

Remember these inspections were on the Hillview Farm. When they went to where the material was applied-still on the farm-of the 17 tests, the IEPA agents found "moderate" odors in two cases; three were "slight." What about the remaining 12? No odors whatever were reported.

In the final set of tests by the Illinois EPA, they were taken mainly in the off-farm areas where odors were reported. In 12 tests, one was found to have "moderate" odors, another registered "light," and the remaining 10 reported "no odors."

Here is what John Raevuori, the IEPA's Environmental Protection Specialist, had to say in his

"No prior announcement was made to the farm's personnel. Mr. Charles Kirkpatrick, the field sanitarian, reported that potassium permanganate was being used for odor control. Slight odors were noticeable on the farmstead.

"Kirkpatrick said odors could not be detected off the farmstead. And no odors were noticeable on the

None of the complainants

the Hillview Farms, so there is less chance of them being bothered by odors and the IEPA makes it clear that the odors from the May farm shouldn't bother them at all. Besides, most farms in Illinois were established in the early 19th century before urban people got the notion to build in the country.

As a lad growing up in Northern Illinois, I noticed that hogs created a greater stench than any other livestock. To get along with his neighbors, May has eliminated hogs from his farm. This has reduced the odors considerably.

When the IEPA inspectors checked the farm near the sludge/manure pits, they reported that an odor was present near the pits, but that 50 feet from the pits and still on the farm, odors were scarcely noticeable.

May says he is willing to work closely with the community to alleviate the odor problem, but he cannot be expected to throw away the thousands of dollars he has invested in special equipment to handle the sludge. Besides, the sludge/manure mix is building up a more productive soil for coming generations.

May says the procedure for applying sludge should scarcely be noticeable to his neighbors.

of an executive session is acting outside his or her official capacity, acting in bad faith and acting with malice against the County of Lake."

With this motion, the county board effectively shut down further leaks of what is happening in negotiations on the Heartland lawsuit. Though the resolution seems, at first glance, to merely encourage members to shut up, it has teeth. Both the county board and its individual members are named in the pending suit. Naturally, the board chose to indemnify individual members from personal liability resulting from any official actions. This resolution means that a county board member who gets caught leaking information could lose his indemnification, finding himself personally responsible for damages that might be awarded by the court. Since the Heartland suit and the related Alter suit seek anywhere between $15 million and $28.5 million in damages, such a loss of indemnification would mean almost certain financial ruin for any county board member if Heartland or Alter won a case.

There is no doubt that governmental bodies have, and should have, the right to negotiate sensitive matters in secret. If they could not do so, very little sensitive business would ever get resolved.

But that was not and is not the problem in this case. The people who leaked the details

"Any member who violates the confidence on the proposed Heartland settlement did not do so because they objected to secret negotiations: they had maintained the secrecy since negotiations began last fall.

What raised the alarm was that it appeared that the county was ready to impose a settlement without giving the people affected anything other than a token opportunity to comment on it. That is the crux of the issue while government has the right to negotiate in secret, when tentative agreement is reached, there is an obligation to provide full disclosure of the details and ample opportunity for the public to consider the agreement before granting final approval.

Settling this suit will involve giving zoning. providing government services to the development, and consideration of a landfill to be run by Waste Management in the area of Peterson Rd. and Rte. 83. When no lawsuit is involved in such matters, the public is given ample opportunity to comment, object, and ultimately reject the project. There is no reason why the general public should not have the same rights in this case.

The county board has demonstrated that it is zealous in defending its right to maintain the integrity of executive sessions. The question now is whether the members will be, equally zealous in defending the right of the people to have more than a mere formality of a hearing after tentative agreement is

Saving Transportation

Village and township officials in Antioch, Avon, Grant and Lake Villa Twps. are working together to make transportation services more efficient and less costly.

Most municipalities and townships have used federal revenue sharing funds to support local transportation service. The loss of such funds threatened to cut these services to Virginia Harrington, clerk of Avon Twp., responded to the problem by spearheading a drive to pool resources and coordinate services throughout County Board Dist. 4.

The response was outstanding. At a time when most communities are cutting back on transportation or even abolishing service entirely, Dist. 4 will expand and improve service for less money.

It is to the credit of all the officials involved that they have been able to work together to preserve this vital service for the citizens of the area. It is an example of what local government, at its best, can accomplish.

'Diamond' Languishes

fascination with air travel and the importance of aviation to society, it's surprising that more interest has not been shown in efforts to upgrade Campbell Airport, a privately owned facility south of the Grayslake-Round Lake area.

In existance more than a quarter of a century, Campbell is basically a recreational facility, although it is used for commerical purposes a little more every year.

It is the commercial potential of Campbell, and its future importance to economic well being of central and west Lake County, that has caught the interest of a few local aviation enthusiasts, notably Mayor George Scherer of Round Lake Park, who has spearheaded efforts to get a federal grant for a study of Campbell's furture. We heartily endorse efforts to upgrade Campbell Airport.

For worthwhile projects, the federal government always has made "big money" available for airport improvements. Just recently, the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) approved over $7 million for Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling, the third installment of monies earmarked to upgrade the facility as it moves from private to public ownership. Palwaukee will be under the joint jurisdiction of Prospect Heights and single village might not be the appropriate terest in Campbell.

Considering the American public's entity to husband the development of an airport for commercial purposes, considering the magnitude of the job. But he is willing to plow ahead. He is to be lauded for his pioneering efforts. Of the various government entities underwhich an airport can be operated, a cooperative effort is virtually essential as exemplified by Palwaukee. But sometimes a cooperative effort designed to broaden the support and management base runs on rough times as in the case of the Fox Valley Airport Authority where officials of DuPage and Kane County are squabbling over control. So the Campbell project continues to limp along, a diamond in the rough.

It's interesting to note how the grant of $7,002,598 for Palwaukee will be used: (1) a noise compatability plan/study; (2) removal of obstructions; (3) construction and lighting of a taxiway and apron; (4) acquistion of land for development and approaches; (5) installation of fencing, and (6) an improved drainage system.

It's not inconceivable that similar amounts of FAA money could be injected into Campbell Airport because of its unquestioned strategic importance. Normally, the local commitment is no more than five percent. We're convinced that Campbell Airport is a key part of economic development in this Mayor Scherer frankly is concerned that a locality. It's a shame there isn't more in-

Harvest Of Hope

Corn is shoulder-high, there is a chilly nip in the morning breeze, and would-be gridiron stars are tackling dummies on high school practice fields throughout the Lakeland area. Another summer is about to give way to autumn.

'Tis a glorious, mysterious season. The earth gives up her bounty, the chill in the air gives hints of trials yet to come, and the trees are made to howl as the wind relieves them of their leaves. But even as the earth convulses in the prolonged death rattle that ignals the end of another productive season, 1 3.1 and women gather their food and their wood in preparation for the winter that lies ahead. They are engaged in the harvest of

For farmers, hope is for a bountiful harvest. For students, hope is for good marks, and maybe a sports championship. For politicians, hope is to harvest enough votes to win in November. For many, hope is simply to weather the winter in comfort and warm-

For all of us, the coming of autumn is a reminder that, for all our technology, we are a small part of a grand, immutable process. The earth goes about her cycles and we canot change them, but only adapt ourselvesand hope.

Though it is traditionally viewed as an ending, autumn is also a beginning: the beginning of hope that the seeds we have sown will yield a bountiful harvest.

Political Cleansing

Editor:

Your article dated Aug. 14, 1986 in the Editor's Viewpoint-Age, LaRouchski, Press Leadership Role on Mickey, is incorrect and misleading.

The LaRouch situation may have weakened the state Democratic party but it has exposed the danger that looms in Lake County politics, today. It has afforded the voters the opportunity to cleanse the county and become aware. The following tells why.

The disarray of the Democratic state ticket caused by the LaRouch intervention into the Democratic party primary may have weakened the state ticket but it has strengthened my fire to win in November and become the next sheriff of Lake County. Other Democratic party countywide candidates feel the same, for, we must stand on our feet and win on our own merits. Tenacity and truth are our weapons and they are strong ones.

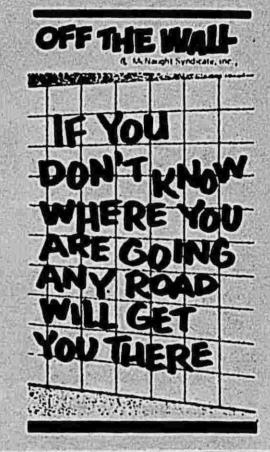

The Republican oriented voters of Lake County are not sheep to be herded by takery, intimidation or puffing. They know that they have been sheered by their party leaders. Once the voters have met the Democratic candidate and have recognized superior qualifications, they become independent voters wanting to hear more.

1, Sander P. Stagman, will win the race to become sheriff of Lake County the old fashioned way-I'll earn it! What the LaRouch fiasco has done is to show everyone that blind voting, either by straight party vote, or by seeing an appealing name, is dangerous and is also a slap to one's intelligence.

What the voters have learned is not to vote straight but to know the candidate.

The LaRouch experience has opened every voter's eye to the dangers that voter ignorance and apathy can allow. The LaRouch fluke has awakened the "Eye of the Tiger." I see what I must do and so has the

Dad's 'Little Girl' Faces New Role As Married Woman

by BILL SCHROEDER

who tend to think of their daughters as "little girls" well beyond the pigtail stage. The jolting reality that they've grown to womanhood never crashes down harder than the day both of you make that fateful trip down the aisle together, dad and his "little girl" for the last time.

Jill's wedding plans have been swirling about for more than a year, but the big date looms like an intruder in the house. Dad is sort of a bystander to preparations for the nuptial experience, benign and bemused. The fretting over a date, the gown, bridesmaids' dresses, planning the ceremony, booking a reception, hiring a band, and so forth, all are the concerns of mother and daughter.

Now, as that date approaches with resounding finality, a flood of thoughts and memories overtakes the father of the bride. Can she cook? Can she iron a shirt? Does she know how to keep house? Will she be able to grocery shop within a budget? Will she be able to cope with the vagaries of the male mind? Those are man thoughts. Then the memories of a father spill out. Jill, a bouncing baby with a sunny disposition and invisible red hair that grew into a cupie doll clump as a toddler; then she became a freckle-faced imp w'a loved a doll with sunken eyes named Janie. The transformation of a daughter is a remarkable thing. So many stages, so many faces.

Third row from the back at dancing I guess I'm not different than most fathers class...a long-legged sprite hanging upside down from a tree...a second grader with missing front teeth...a real "water bug" in swimming class...a budding sailor...the faithful piano student who took up trumpet so she could join the band...4-H meetings to learn dog training...funny how the images come back. All of a sudden grade school days turned to high school...that first beau...playing on a championship softball team in the state finals...father-daughter dances...captain of the ponpom squad...being smitten by a certain shy, softspoken young man with dark curly hair...how soon college arrived...sorority rush...dad's day football games at the big State U...abbreviated summer vacations and back to the books...getting pinned, es. Jill and Ralph are serious...now, it seems, family togetherness waits for holidays and occasional ski trips...your "little girl" is on her own with girl friends to the Rose Bowl in far off California...almost like a bolt graduation looms and it's time for job interviews...And now a wedding. Where did the > time go? So, Jill, it'll be you and me briefly for the wedding march and then it will be you and Ralph forever. Your mother and I know you'll continue to be a loving, caring, concerned daughter. You're about to become a married woman so I'll have to think of you differently in the future. God bless you and Ralph in your new life.

Facts About The Many Types Of Wild Dogs

by CHARLENE WHITNEY

Most people believe there are only three or four types of wild dogs, but there are really 35 different species.

The first wild dogs lived in North America. After thousands of years they spread to all continents except for Antarctica. To survive in different parts of the world, their bodies developed in different ways. From this came the different species.

Some of the different ones are: gray fox, coyote, red wolf, maned wolf, bush dog, fennee. Arctic fox, red fox, gray wolf, raccoon dog, dhole, black-backed jackal, bat-eared fox. African wild dog, and the dingo. More than any group of predators. hunt a deer and 10 or 15 to the wild dogs have adapted in more different places. They eat most anything and when meat is scarce, they eat plants and insects.

They are good runners and they must be as they chase their prey for long distances and they have great endurance. A coyote can reach the top speed of 40 miles per hour. If the dog stays close to its prey it has a good chance to overtake it. The longer his legs are the more ground he can cover. His body is almost all muscle.

The wild dog hunts in different ways as this depends on their size. They often hunt small prey, but will team up with others to hunt larger prey. It may take two or three wolves to

A special strategy is used. First they separate a few of the caribou from the herd. They single out a young or weak individual. One of them will start to bark and startle it. The remaining pack will circle around and when it is startled and bolts, the wolves quickly surround it. This is nature's means for survival.

Dingos hunt in pairs for kangaroos. Jackals and other wild dogs become scavengers. They clean meat from the bones of a dead animal. They clean up after predators. The fox hunts for small prey such as mice. The bat-eared fox lives mainly on termites. With his enourmous ears, he can hear them running through the

Braving The Brisket--Experience Best Teacher

If you can't learn from mistakes in the kitchen, you're in deep trouble at the dinner

A couple years back, before I barbecued a beef brisket with sauce, all in foil, my wife insisted she boil it a bit for the sake of tenderness. I gave in reluctantly.

Out on the gas barbecue later, the brisket began to do a slow burn. I was cooking ribs, too, so I just pushed the foiled brisket to one corner of the grill. Instead, I should have checked the meat. In two words: it scorched; in several words: I did a slow burn.

Alas, the foil and sauce prevented a total

Most recently, I prepared brisket again using the same barbecue sauce, and foiled it. but did not parboil. Anita offered no resistan-

I barbecued the brisket along with chicken leg quarters, which took about an hour on low heat, covered. The brisket took, say 50 minutes longer. I also checked on the meat after the second turn.

An errant fork pricked the foiled brisket and I got burned by hot juices in the center of my right palm. I didn't fumble the brisket at the front door, however, and my wife came to the rescue.

Anita applied toothpaste to the burn. Toothpaste? It didn't blister. It didn't hurt. It

Oh yes, the brisket was fine, too.

Public Insurance Adjusters Can Help Win Claim

You can survive a flood without an ark. It's 3 a.m. and a heavy rainstorm has caused the neighborhood stormdrains to back up--into your basement, or worse, into your house or store. How do you bail out with a minimum of loss?

If your loss is large, $10,000 or more, consider hiring a public insurance adjuster. Public adjusters are most commonly known for their work with major commercial losses. But, they can be of great help to homeowners and small business operators, most of whom are not aware of their existence.

"Public adjusters work for the claimant, not the insurance company," said Lawrence Hyman, property insurance expert with Harry B. Hyman & Son of Evanston. "They prepare the claims on behalf of the victim. They are professionals and insurance companies feel comfortable working with them. Because they can actually make life less complicated for the insurance company, they know exactly how to get the best and fastest cash settlement."

Public adjusers generally work on contingency basis for 10 percent of the cash insurance settlement. So, if you are the victim of a flood, fire or other property disaster, you do not have to lay out any cash for their fee, until your insurace settlement comes through.

Here are some of the services that come with a public adjuster:

-INVENTROY OF LOSS - The public adjuster will climb through the muck and fish out every piece of property that you have lost. This would include valuable artwork to every lost pair of socks.

Because their pay is based upon the size of your insurance settlement, it is in the adjuster's interest to see that no insured item is overlooked," said Hyman. "Most people are traumatized by the event. They do not have the time or patience to be really detailed and may lose substantial legitimate insurance dollars."

"When we had our flood, the public adjuster and his crew spent the better part of two days going through the disaster that was our personal property," said Mrs. Jane W. of Highland Park. "I would have had a horrible time. Besides the grunginess of picking through items soaked with storm water and sewage, I was distraught by seeing irreplacable parts of our past destroyed."

--PROPERTY EVALUATION - Once the inventory has been made, the pricing of all the damaged or destroyed property begins. This is especially important if your insurance policy covers the replacement costs of lost property.

The public adjuster is equipped to establish the cost of the lost goods through a system of pricing from catalogs, retail stores, suppliers and the insured.

"Our list of destroyed belongings ran a full 24 single-spaced pages," said Mrs. W. "What records we had were lost in the flood and besides, who keeps records of the cost of goods purchased years ago. To find their present replacement value would have been impossible, even if we had the time to take-off from work."

GENERAL SUPERVISION OF THE RECOVERY - Immediately after being retained, the public adjuster takes charge. This includes advising the insured as to what temporary expenditures the victim can make that the insurance company will accept, to ordering clean-up and repair crews.

"Our public adjuster called a disaster crew to clean, dry and disinfect our home, arranged for the dumpster to haul away the wreckage and the special dry cleaner to determine what of our damaged clothing was salvageable." said Mrs. W. "He also found an appraiser for the artwork and furnishings."

--NEGOTIATIONS WITH THE IN-SURANCE COMPANY - Mrs. W.'s public adjuster got the insurance company's adjuster on to the scene quickly and established ground rules for handling the damage claim.

"He handled everything. Aside from one meeting with the company adjuster, we never had to talk to anyone," said Mrs. W.

Unfortunately good public adjusters are hard to find. While public insurance adjusters are licensed in about 38 stateb, that is no guarantee that your PA is competent or even honest. Many of the best do not advertise or promote themselves.

"Your best bet may be a successful referral. It's like finding a lawyer, relying on the yellow pages is like casting your fate on the throw of a dart," said one New York insurance company adjuster.

However, bad ones can be spotted with a bit of homework.

-CHECK FIRST with your insurance agent and/or insurance company claims office, or that of a friend. Ask for the names of a few public adjusters that they have found to be reliable.

-AVOID AMBULANCE CHASERS - Avoid the PA who arrives at a disaster before the fire trucks. In those states licensing PAs, the claimant is given the right to cancel his contract within a specified period of time.

--CALL THE BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU - "It is unfortunate, but there are no clearing houses or associations that guarantee competence or ethics among public adjusters," said Barry Goldfedder with Theodore Spak & Associates in Chicago, Mrs. W.'s public adjuster. "Like many of our better colleagues, we do not advertise and we do not belong to any trade associations. This does not mean that those who do are bad. It does mean that a large body of quality adjusters are hard to find."

For pre-emptige protection, Hyman advised, "First and foremost, get a good insurance policy with full replacement coverage before the flood. Go with a company that has a reputation for quick, dispute-free settlements."

The free instructional program reaches millions of students each year. The program typically lasts four to six weeks. The IRS says students can be expected to finish the course with an understanding of how to handle their own tax matters and a clearer concept of the economics of our tax system.

Study guides, teacher's manuals and films are supplied by the IRS free of

Edison Is Closer To Goal

Commonwealth Edison's cost containment porgram reduced operating and maintenance expenditures by $77 million during the first six months of 1986 compared to the same period in 1985. Dennis Bieschke. Waukegan district manager, declared.

Implemented in October 1985, the program is aimed at maintaining a flat level of operating costs through 1988 in an effort to minimize future rate increases. All areas of the company are spending less without compromising safety or the quality of service to customers, according to Bieschker

Some of the program's highlights include:

-a reduction in the total workforce of over 400 positions accomplished throught a complete, ongoing freezeon hiring plus normal attrition.

-a more than 50 percent reduction in overtime payments, primarily through the re-scheduling of work. Reductions in overtime do not apply to the emergency restoration of electric service;

--wage containment, including a freeze on middle and upper management salaries, saving over $9 million;

-- renegotiation of office equipment vendor contracts. which will result in savings totaling more than $6 million during the next five years;

-a savings in telephone expenses amounting to $2.5 million:

-a $1 million savings in turniture expenses;

-- cancellation of various internal programs, including tour major annual conterences:

-- consolidation of two operating areas with counterpart operations at an ultimate annual savings of approximately $15 million.

"We're moving closer to achieving our 1986 goals and I am confident we will meet them," Bieschke said, "We want to provide our three million customers with the best electric service possible and the best value for their

Q: My 10 year old son is showing an interest in golf. Is he old enough to begin, and if so, what type of instruction would be

A: I may be somewhat prejudiced here as I have always enjoyed working with our junior golfers. From experience I have found that age is not really an important consideration. When a young person expresses an interest in the sport he or she is certainly ready to begin to learn. As to whether private or class lessons would serve best, why not discuss with your son which would be the most comfortable for him? If you choose a good teacher your son will receive sound fundamental instruction in either case. May I mention one further point to remember? A good teacher will continually encourage your son to see the possibilities within himself and the joy that this sometimes demanding sport can produce. A perfectly developed swing is of no use to a young person who gives up the game entirely because he or she has not been taught to find real pleasure in the sport itself.

Swim Race To Promote Chain

by STEVE PETERSON

Sept. 13 may go down in history as an important date in the history of the Chain-of-Lakes area.

That's the day David Usrey and his wife Linda hope to making swimming the top sport in the region. The Fox Lake couple are planning a four-mile swim challenge race from Fox Lake to Johnsburg.

"The idea behind the race is to allow as many people as possible to swim the fourmile course," David Usrey Usrey said he is expecting some 100 to 200 participants in the race from age 15 to 60.

He said the race will help promote the Fox Lake area.

"We want the chain of Lakes region to be known as a water wounderland," Usrey said,

The race will begin at Korpan's Landing, crosses Nippersink Lake, goes under the Rte. 12 bridge, across Pistake Lake and down the Fox River to Johnsburg at the bridge on Chapel Hill Rd.

Sponsors include the Fox Lake Chamber of Commerce, Munson Marina, Pier Inn, Camp Duncan YMCA, Fox Lake State Bank and Korpans Landing.

Usrev said he has swum the course to determine legistics along with five mile. Safety patrol boats other people.

Ceramic Lessons Make Artists Out Of Anybody

by GLORIA DAVIS

Making ceramic things, from a beginners ashtray to a difficult Dresden doll, can satisfy a creative instinct even for people who have little artistic talent.

Ceramic lessons have for years been a haven for housewives who just want to get away from the kids, enjoy a little comradery and yet still accomplish.

Working with the clay or greenware(dried clay moldings)can be most soothing to frazzled nerves. One lady, who was dragged protestingly to ceramic classes by friends, ended-up, not only making a little money with what she learned but the nerve-caused rash she had had on her hands for years, mysteriously disappeared.

Whether or not it was working with the clay or just the fact that many tensions were released while she sanded and glazed away, was not really important. The results were what counted.

While learning, she filled her house with ceramics, ranging from ashtrays to vases, to her favorite and most difficult project, a 24 piece creche using three techniques.

When she became more confident in her work, she started making special gifts for friends and relatives.

Eventually she began to hold small demonstrations at friends' homes using ceramics she had made herself and borrowing some of those gifts for samples.

People who attended the demonstrations were thrilled to be able to order her wares in colors of their own choosing. Some of the customers were even able to to come up with a little customizing that she was able

Because she was still paying retail prices, which include retail cost of materials and separate charges for each firing, she didn't make a lot on each order, but was able, after working her rashless fingers to the bone, to clear enough to buy a new diningroom set.

Places that sell greenware and give lessons have been springing up everywhere with increasing popularity. Besides being offered through many park ditricts, recreation centers and YWCAs, ceramic lessons are available from some who teach in their homes and others who have made a profitable business, not only by giving the lessons and selling the materials to their students, but by selling the greenware wholesale to other ceramic studios and schools.

Muriel Oelkers teaches out of her home in Lake Villa and Miller Ceramics is also located in the same village.

Town and Country Ceramics Supply is on Rte. 83 in Grayslake and so is White Buffalo Ceramics. Ceramic Arts, which deals both in wholesale and retail, is on Rte. 134 in Round Lake Park.

The Dot Shop an be found in Fox Lake, Cove Ceramics and Chippewa Ceramics are in Wildwood and Mac's Ceramics is located on Rte. 83 in Antioch, to name a few places in Lake County where ceramic lessons are available.

Those With 6 Thumbs Can Make Pretty Things

by GLORIA DAVIS

Many years ago the arts of knitting, crocheting and quilting were learned at mother's knee. Today, mother is either too busy at the office or doesn't know a thing about needlework.

So those who yearn to master these crafts just find themselves heading for the local dollar store like Ben Franklin in Linden Plaza, Lindenhurst.

Using craft classes as a sales promotion to sell the wide array of craft supplies that are stocked, the family center also offers classes in tole painting, wood and door decorating, flower arranging and the many ways to make more attractive home decorative pieces.

Dian Long, who has been doing hand crafts like these for close to 23 years, teaches these classes at Ben Franklin.

"I was raising my six children by myself and doing hand crafts offered a chance for the family to do constructive things together," she said.

Working with schools, clubs and Scouting classes helped increase her knowledge of clever handiwork.

"Now my new husband is probably as craft crazy as I am, so it's an important part of our lives," she adds.

Both children and adult level classes are offered, but the average craft-loving student's age is between 24-34 years old.

"They've finally got their children in school and have some free time they want to fill," she said.

Some of the members of the children's classes are as young as two years old."We made pom pon animals last week and we make things like key holders for Fathers Day and baskets of flowers for Mothers Day." Long reported.

"I have one 12-year-old whom I have moved to the adult classes because she's good and wants to learn everything." she added.

Long has come up with a new twist to the wall hangings that are wood embroidery hoops with material stretched in them, trimmed with lace or eyelit ruffles.

"The towels (dish and face) are so lovely now that we're stretch pretty ones on the hoops, and trimmed them with lace and or ribbon,." she said.

The adding of more pieces of the same linen pattern(towels, wash cloths, etc.) to the hoop makes up into a beautiful gift package for many occasions is another of Long's clever suggestions.

All classes are free except for quilting, knitting, crocheting and painting, but all the materials to be u should be purchased from the family

Even those who haven't Long's in sense of creativity, and those who have thumbs on one hand, can learn to be hi clever, "It's really easy."

Can You Be Too Smart?

by LESLIE LEWIS

There is an old saying that "he was too smart for his own good."

Is it really possible to be too intelligent? Most of us would probably say no. Yet if someone offered us the chance to either be more intelligent or happier, chances are we'd opt for an extra dash of happiness.

We probably all remember the bespectacled whiz kid in school who could finish a math test with a perfect score while the rest of us struggled on the third or fourth problem. Often, if my school was anything like yours, these super-intelligent students had few friends and the last thing we ever wished for was to be more like them, except perhaps at exam time.

But just what is intelligence anyway? Believe it or not there have been a lot of different opinions on the subject. Lewis L. Thurstone, an American psychologist, for instance, concluded that intelligence was composed of numerous abilities including fluency, the ability to visualize objects in space, memorization and reasoning.

For many years the psychologists also maintained that intelligence didn't change. You were as intelligent as the brains you were born with and that was that.

Then the classic best-seller "Dianetics: The Modern Science of Mental Health" by L. Ron Hubbard came along and shook a lot of these earlier superstitions. While the psychologists and psychiatrists were busy teaching that intelligence didn't change, the I.Q.s (the most widely used test of intelligence) of those receiving Dianetics counselling continued to shoot up.

Dianetics proved that people could get smarter, which is a big relief for those of us who could use an extra boost of brilliance.

Which brings us back to the burning question: Is it possible to be too smart? Can one be both, intelligent and happy?

"Dianetics" also answers this one for us by actually defing intelligence and happiness, for the first time with workable definitions. "Intelligence is the ability to perceive, pose and resolve problems," writes Hubbard, and he says that "Happiness is the overcoming of not unknown obstacles toward a known goal, and transiently, the contemplation of or indulgence in pleasure."

When you think about it the happiest' times we remember are probably those times when we were winning towards some goal, big or little. Being more intelligent enables us to better solve problems and therefore actually makes a happier life possible.

Of course there is a lot more to this—how you can increase your intelligence for instance—which "Dianetics" covers in detail.

But I thought you'd like to know that if you want to be happier being dumb isn't the answer. Dianetics research has proved this once and for all! Bethel Lutheran Church

Extension Goal: Teach One And Reach Many

by SUSAN MONTGOMERY

"Teach one, reach many" - the concept sounds simple, but it's that very thought that keeps Lake County Cooperative Extension Advisors Barbara Dahl and Irene Green scrambling when they start planning for the program's fall classes.

"I don't know what the word 'bored' means," Dahl laughs.

Since its beginning in 1914, the Extension has always counted on this "ripple effect" of teaching to spread information to residents in all parts of the county.

"We train leaders in groups of about 45. They, in turn, go out and lead classes to the different Homemakers Extension clubs," Dahl said. "That's one of the reasons we can do so much.'

Affiliated with the University of Illinois-Champaign College of Agriculture, the Extension Service "takes the university's research and translates it to information that people can use," Dahl said.

But the program has come a long way since the days when canning, horticulture and general health tips made up its core of classes.

Whether its learning to identify toxic household chemicals, financial management, disaster preparedness or buying a car, today's Extension courses reflect the interest of a society concerned about social and health issues.

"People call in with all kinds of questions," Dahl said. "That's how most of our courses get started. You might say we're like a clearinghouse."

Inevitably, the two women are called upon to design a program for a topic they know nothing about. "We're always learning," Dahl says.

With the help of outside resources and a program council, whose members represent a variety of age groups and backgrounds, new classes are constantly

"For example, people are more health conscious," Dahl said. "But are they always aware of the number of toxic chemicals they use every day in their homes?"

While addressing current issues continues to be a strong drawing factor, Dahl and Green admit that the program's strength is in developing leadership among its members.

"We've had so many people start out at the local level in their own clubs," Green said. "From there, they become more involved and move on to our state organization."

Homemakers Examine Equipment

Tae Kwon Do Lessons In Self Discipline

by GLORIA DAVIS

Although the normal span of learning can run from the kindergarten through post college graduate work, many people take extracurricular classes both during and after their official "school" years.

There are the ambitious learners who are always searching for new information and constantly trying to widen their scope of knowledge.

There are those who take one or more of the myriad of self improvement classes for just that reason, to make themselves a better all around person.

Then there are those who take fun classes that teach them how to do things

Karate and Tae Kwon Do classes have been gaining popularity as steadily as the physical fitness craze has been growing.

Tom Myers, owner and teacher of Chandler's Family Fitness Center in Lindenhurst capsulizes his classes as "classes in self discipline"in many senses of that Mastery of the marshal arts can bring one a sense of physical and mental well being, as well as an increased sense of self confidence and self control.

"There are marshal arts teachers that just teach people a way to fight, I think that's sad," said Myers. Chandler's offers these Tae Kwon Do classes to children from five years of age to seniors in their 60s. The average age in the childrens' classes is eight years old and the average age in the adult classes is between 25 and 30 years old.

"Kids come at first because they've seen it in the movies and on tv shows," and the kids would like to be able to be in control of a fight-situation.

Though many think they are just going to learn to throw people around and defend themselves with their feet as well as their hands, they soon learn that these are not really lessons in being agressive, but instead, if learned properly, are classes in developing awarness of one's inner self and learning how to read a situation quickly.

As Tae Kwon Do teaches character development it instills an inner sense of well being and self confidence. People properly trained in the marshall arts use their training everyday but contrary to popular belief, that training is not used physically unless at last resort.

"Children are urged to impart and share what they've learned to other children. They think that this is great. How often has an eight-year-old something to teach someone else?"

The development of self control, the gaining of self-esteem (all possible if properly trained in the marshall arts)can be used by children and adults alike in most if not all phases of their lives, from the academic and business world down to the social whirl.

Leanring to make correct choices, and the gaining of self-confidence as well as an ability to defend oneself are also the primary reasons that adults are flocking to Tae Kwon Do classes all over the nation.

Don't think it's all fun and games, learning Tae Kwon Do takes a lot of practice and dedication.

But these lessons, usually sandwiched in during people's free time, could have a profound effect on the trainee's entire life.

Children from households whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians. To apply for free or reduced price meals, households should fill out the form and return it to the school. Additional copies of the application form are available at the principal's office in each school. Households should answer all questions on the form. An application which does not contain all of the following information cannot be processed by the household's food stamp case number if the household is on food stamps; (2) names of all household members:

(1) the total household income AND the amount and source of income received by each household member (such as wages, child support, etc.)

(3) social security numbers of all household members 21 years of age or older or the word "NONE" for any adult household member who does not have a social security number; and

(4) the signature of an adult household member. "Household" is defined as a group of related or non-related individuals who are not residents of an institution or boarding house, who are living together as one

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility and verifying data. Applications may be verified by the school or other officials at any time during the school year. If children are approved for free or reduced price meal benefits, the household must report to the school increases in household income over $50 per month ($600 per year) and decreases in household size. Households may apply for benefits at any time during the school year. If a household is not currently eligible but has a decrease in household income, an increase in household size or if a household member becomes unemployed, the household should fill out an application at that time. In certain cases foster children are eligible for these benefits regardless of the household's income. If a household has foster children living with them and they wish to apply for free or reduced price meals for them, the household should contact the school for more information. Under the provisions of the policy Donald E. Skidmore will review applications and determine eligibility. Parents or guardians dissatisfied with the ruling of the official may wish to discuss the decision with the determining official on an informal basis. The household also has the right to a fair hearing. This can be done by calling or writing the following official: Edward Haley, 850 Highview Drive, Antioch, Illinois 60002 - (312) 395-0712. Each school and the Antioch School District Number 34 Central Office have a copy of the complete policy, which may be reviewed by any interested party

In the operation of the child feeding programs no child will be discriminated against on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, sex, or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

John Makes It Clear: t's Mickey In A Walk

V.JOHN STEINKE

Sometimes mail call is slow at Lakeland Newspapers. Until two weeks ago, I didn't realize that I had received correspondence from Lake County Sheriff Robert II. "Mickey" Babcox. The sheriff's letter was in response to my June column on his Democratic opponent: Sander P. Stagman. Now, Boss, don't beat me anymore. I'm going to publish the full text of your "Dear John" message:

"I read with interest the first two paragraphs of your June 26 column. I also read with disappointment the balance of the column. A man with a $50,000 campaign fund should pay to have his campaign propaganda published.

Steinke On Politics

"I would not doubt that your late grandfather was also a brilliant politician. Were he alive today, I would be the first to enlist him in my firing squad to shoot each convicted dope deddler every Thursday morning at sunrise. But first, John, we would heed to a small detail-amending the U.S. and Illinois Constitution!)

"As far as my treatment of my opponent and his comrade, Don Mason, in the upcoming campaign, I want you to know that being a licensed funeral director (and adopting the words of Winston Churchill), I fully intend to embalm, cremate and bury Mssrs. Stagman and Mason so deep that they will never again surface in Lake County politics.

"I would like to close this brief note by again borrowing from Winston Churchill, 'Nothing in life is so exhilerating as to be shot at without result.""

Oh. Boss, what can I say? I mean, I ain't going to work on no Lake County road gang unless you're reelected sheriff this fall. You're probably the only sheriff on this planet, who wins a hog-calling contest in the morning and then goes home to read Winston Churchill's memoirs at night. I'm really surprised that you didn't incorporate your name on the ballot as Sir Winston "Mickey" Bancox. Does your candidate for county clerk, "Ma" Kettle, know that Sir Winston Churchill is NOT the state representative from Lake Villa Manor?

Now, Mick, I'm going to share a secret with you. You've got to promise me that you won't reveal these comments to anyone. Do you pledge that you'll eat your chocalate pistol if you betray my confidence? I believe you, Mick. I really do. You have good character witnesses: Bill and Clem Haley.

Once again, Mick, your assessment of a political opponent MAY be right. I have had some second thoughts about Sander P. Stagman's candidacy for sheriff. My only friend, Bob Townsend, met Stagman at the Waukegan parade this summer. Townsend commented: "Stagman looks and sounds like (comedian) Mel Brooks. In fact, he's almost the same height as Brooks. How can anyone take Stagman seriously as a candidate for sheriff?"

Second, Stagman is campaigning for sheriff like he is running against Sister Teresa. Mel Brooks Stagman wants to feed the poor, save Warren High School, help economic development and provide leadership for the Lake County state legislative delegation. Apparently, Stagman doesn't understand the sheriff's responsibilities. A sheriff is suppose to hire competent professionals to run the department while he builds a political machine.

Boss, I'm sorry, but my poison pen is running out of ink and I'm suppose to be on vacation. So let's continue our dialogue in next week's column. Now you tell your deputies, Clint and Chick, to put down them rubber hoses. I ain't going to make no trouble for you. Honest! You can trust Poison Pen John.

Bell Offers Customers Custom Calling Services

Eligible Illinois bell customers now have an opportunity to order selected optional services from the company without having to pay the usual connection charge.

For a limited time, eligible customers can order one or more optional service-such as custom calling services, line-backer or touch-tone service-and save the usual one-time connection charge of up to $36 for business customers or $20 for residence customers, as a result of the settlement of a class-action suit on the company's Inside Wire Maintenance service.

"Customers who order now get the benefit of optional calling services and get their hook-up for free," said Jack Pepping, Illinois Bell district manager.

The one-time offer is good until June 23, 1987. Though there will be no connection charges, monthly rates will apply. Optional services which are available are: Call Waiting, $3 per month; Call Forwarding, Three-Way Calling and Speed Calling,

$2.50 per month; Touch-Tone, 73 cents per month; Line-Backer Pak, $2.25 per month; and Line-Backer Plus Pak, $3.25 per month.

Customers not selecting an optional service can cancel their participation in the Inside Wire Maintenance Plan and share in the claim fund set up as part of the settlement.

Customers who elect to cancel the plan will receive a credit of up to $7.50, depending on the number of people who select this option, and may not resume participation for six months,: Pepping said. Customers who cancel the plan will have to pay a service order charge to resume participation.

Under the Inside Wire Maintenance service, which the company began in 1982, customers who wanted to maintain their own wiring were not required to pay a monthly maintenance fee of 39 cents for residence customers or 44 cents for business customers.

In August 1982, Amy Falk initiated a class-action suit

For additional information

call (312) 360-6500 or the against Illinois Bell. She charged that the method of having customers notify the company of their preference not to subscribe was an "illegal negative option." In December, 1985, an out-ofcourt settlement was reached with the plaintiffs, which is why the company is now waiving connection charges for selected optional services or offering one-time credits to eligible customers.

"Since August 1982, nearly 100,000 customers under the plan have had repairs to their wiring at no additional cost," .Pepping said. "If customers choose to discontinue the plan, they will be responsible for maintaining their own inside wiring."

Under the terms of the settlement, customers who do not choose either option will receive a credit of $1 or more upon distribution of a residual fund in July 1987.

In the next two months, eligible Illinois Bell customers are being notified as to options available to them and are being asked to notify the company of their selection by a ballot enclosed in the mailing. Customers who have questions or would like additional information can call 1-800-654-3369 (within the 312 area code) or 1-800-642-9473 (beyond the 312 area code).

throwing 'Wait' Around

When I Think About It

GLORIA DAVIS

Although many have blamed modern echnology for being the perpetrator of plans or an "instant world," on the other side of he proverbial coin, delays now exist that previously did not.

There was a time when all one needed to buy a product or to enlist a service was the address of the vendor or solicitor and the money to pay the bill.

But today, for various reasons, a large part of the retail and service communities is locked into a "six to eight week" time frame. This is the way it goes. First you see or hear an advertisement for a product that tempts you to a particular retail establish-

So you ease on down and there it is, just the thing you've been looking for! You open your wallet and either count your available cash or mentally calculate whether or not your charge card can take it, turn to the clerk(if you can find one) and say, "I'll take it."

Wrong! "It'll take approximately six to eight weeks for us to get this to you," is the answer you get instead of the merchandise.

Nobody wants to spend the money or devote space to keeping an inventory much deeper than the sample of the product.

Hey, when it comes to gifts, I do well to remember dates and get motivated towards gift buying a week before such an occasion. At that rate one has to work two months to a quarter of a year ahead.

Another problem is that either payment in full or a substantial deposit is usually required before ordering a product.

I don't know about everyone else, but with costs being what they are, I do well to pay for necessities and luxuries called for from paycheck to paycheck, forget forking money out that far ahead of time.

Now I would never infer that a salesperson would tell a fib just to make a sale, but, sometimes they greatly underestimate how long it will really take to fill the order.

Once I decided to buy a prospective bride settings of her silver for a shower gift. The shower was in July. I dutifully went to the store at which she had registered and found that they only had one place setting in stock gave her a card at the shower(how boring!)that announced she would receive her silver inside of the usual six to eight week waiting period. Again, wrong!

So I ordered and paid for the silver, and country has joined the army?

After numerous phone calls and letters, the silver arrived in time for her six-month anniversary.

They might as well have waited 24-andone-half years longer and I could have killed two birds with one stone.

I have friends who got married in September, and immediately went furniture shopping with the money they received for wedding gifts.

They were perfectly satisfied to wait "six to eight" weeks to see their tiny apartment turned into a tiny furnished home.

With the marriage-divorce rate being one out of every two, you won't be surprised to hear that the furniture arrived in total, five months later, just in time for them to fight over who got what in the divorce settlement.

There is a growing economic pressure on the fast and repeated sell which brings about style changes in everything very quickly.

Taking both this and the usual waiting period into consideration, one is lucky to receive ordered merchandise before it goes completely out of style.

Waiting several weeks until a plumber can "squeeze you in," while a leaky pipe floods your house is an old story.

I heard a new "take an aspirin" story the other day.

It seems that some body shops are requiring a check from the insurance company before they even order the parts to fix a wrecked car. And many of them are so busy(a testation either to driving abilities or the fact that a 90 pound woman can kick a dent on a new car while wearing gym shoes)that there is a two or more week wait before they even start considering your

Since the fine print in many car insurance policies does not mention paying for a rental car in such cases, what does a person do in this automated society without a car for several weeks, especially locally, where public transportation to and from jobs does not abound?

With these new hurry up and wait policies, do you ever get the feeling that the entire

Sixth graders will participate in a study skills course three periods a week designed to improve skills such as outlining, speed reading, research, notetaking, and critical

Exploratory courses, which will expose students to a variety of interests and knowledge in an informal setting, will be offered to cross grade groupings of all junior high students. These courses may help students make good decisions about which electives to take in high school. Each teacher has selected a topic for exploratory courses based on personal interests, hobbies, or other courses of study the teacher has pursued. Topics for this year include mythology, batik, high finance, string art design, dramatics, cricket and first aid. Each course

Because of the additions to the junior high program, scheduling has been changed to place academic "core" subjects at prime time. Non-core classes will generally be taught in the afternoon.

The band schedule this year consists of two last period sessions and one before school session.

Members of the junior high staff at Emmons are Kathy Uredowski, science; Valerie Hansen, English; Steve Skurski, social studies; and Kathy Lyman, mathematics.

Artes (Mar. 21-Apr 19) Cupid makes sheep's eyes at lucky Rams and Ewes. New romances flourish; established relationships are stronger.

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 20) Get set for lots of interesting action as Cupid aims his arrows for a Bulls-eye. Arian aspects find most favor with rementically receptive Bovines.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Good things don't always come in small packages. You don't have to accept minor payment in return for major contributions.

Cancer (June 21-Jul 20) A once apparently hopeless situa-tion now seems to take on new life. Its chance for survival depends on you. Cultivate it carefully.

Lee (Jul 21-Aug. 21) A strong aspect indicates an oppor-tune time for expanding your prospects. Continue to strengthen those weak spots.

Virgo (Aug. 22-Sept. 22) A collaboration continues to work well. Mutual trust strengthens the relationship. Favorable news comes within weeks of a request.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct 22) It's an excellent time for straightening out a series of misunderstandings. Seek out associates who may have been misled about your intentions.

Scerple (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) A turn towards a more conservative financial stand may be advisable. Resist those who insist you can afford a risky investment. Maybe later.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) A friend reveals long sup-pressed feelings that could change your relationship. Plan your reactions carefully. Some of the story is yet to be told.

Capriceers (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You need to show more flex-ibility in your relationships, particularly with teenagers. Rigidity can lead to damaging breaks that can be avoided.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Keep in mind the words, "You Deserve It." Just for a while put the needs of others aside and concentrate on fulfilling those of your own.

Pisces (Feb. 19-Mer. 20) Aspects favor movement. Expect to be offered relocation opportunities. Look forward to trips to new destinations as well as to old favorites. © 1986, McNaught Synd.

Smithey To Manage Growth

How does a new superintendent cope with a growing school system&

That is the question facing Lee Smithey, who begins his first academic year at Millburn Grade School later this month.

Millburn's growing enrollment will mean a larger school staff, but just how much bigger than last year remains to be seen.

"It all depends on enrollment," Smithey said.

Smithey, in his 20 years in education, has managed both growth and decline.

He prefers growth.

"It is a lot more pleasant to manage growth than decline," he said.

Smithey succeeds Richard Framke as chief of the school district which serves Linenhurst, Old Mill Creek and Wadsworth.

Education, sometimes, is not just theory and classroom. Sometimes, it involves keeping a building together.

A water problem in the basement caused by a fualty sump pump was the first problem Smithey A to solve. Smithey said he plans to use to basement area for classrooms to accommodate new growth.

Smithey said the outbreak of deannexation bids in Lake County is a new experience for him.

"So many people want to deannex from schools for various reasons. It's a new experience for me," he said.

In terms of the affects of Senate Bill 730, the educational reform act, Smithey said that will mean more forms to fill out for himself and his staff. He added that "not all of the educational reforms are bad".

Teacher evaluations at a local level, for example, would be good because, "you would be surprised how many districts do not do evaluations," Smithey said.

However, the superintendent said he does not favor the strict evaluation testing such as is done in Texas.

"The idea behind that is to take the incompetent teachers out of the classroom. But if you train the teachers right in college, that should not be a problem," Smithey said.

Smithey has been a teacher, principal and administrator. He said he has enjoyed all three facets of education.

"I enjoyed them all. They all have different challenges and responsibilities," he said.

If a racetrack becomes reality in Old Mill Creek, the Millburn School Dist. would directly benefit, Smithey said.

Babcox, Board Negotiating

Robert H. Babcox has announced that he and the Lake County Board are negotiating contractual police services with four county villages.

Sheriff Babcox stated that, "The concept of contractual police services is gaining interest with other communities throughout the nation as a more cost efficient way to provdie police protection than for a particular community to hire, equip and house their own police force."

Sheriff Babcox further stated that the contracts are flexible as to the number of hours of patrol a particular village desires. Each village would have to look at its own budget to decide the intensity of police protection it can afford.

Home Federal Savings Reports Record Growth

Home Federal Savings and Loan Association of Lake County is pleased to report record levels of growth and net worth for the period ending June 30, 1986. Total assets increased to $172,204,000 as of June 30, 1986 from the $138,167,000 reported at the end of June in 1985. During the last twelve months total loans rose to $118,512,000 as of June 30, 1986 from the $104,367,000 reported for June 30, 1985. Savings accounts likewise posted a new high of $133,882,000 for June 30, 1986, up over $6,000,000 from June of 1985.

Most importantly net worth, that amount set aside to provide for possible future contingencies and an overall indicator of a financial institution's overall strength, rose to $8,542,000 as of June 30, 1986. The $8,542,000 reported at the end of June is 80% greater than the amount required by our federal regulators. One further item worth mentioning is the method of preparing the financial statement accompanying this article. Home Federal's financial statements are prepared using generally accepted accounting principles, quite often referred to as GAAP. Some other financial institutions have used and are using the less acceptable regulatory accounting principles. It's nice to know, that your financial institution is growing in a strong, profitable and consistent manner, but it's even nicer to know that the growth is reported in a manner that is the standard of the accounting profession. Home Federal will continue to grow consistently and profitably, while adhering to sound and safe business practices. We are proud of our record and believe we are Lake County's safest place to fulfill all of your Home Federal Savings and Loan Association of Lake County whose main office is in Waukegan, Illinois, also has branch offices located in Grayslake, Lindenhurst and Fox Lake. Home Federal Savings also maintains a commercial lending office in downtown Chicago.
